

How to become a student of exchange?

best site to buy college essays

Participation in the International Student Exchange Program is a good prospect for the future, since the student can:

To visit the border;

Improve their knowledge of a foreign language;

Pass internship in a foreign company;

Change the usual atmosphere and make new acquaintances;

Expand your own horizons.

That is why not only students of universities, but also schoolchildren dream of becoming participants in the exchange program and make maximum efforts for their light and promising future.

Features of the student exchange program

To date, many universities of the countries have established international relations and are constantly exchanged by students, once again emphasizing their successful and fruitful cooperation.

There are many such programs, the main thing is to determine how to choose and understand what adventure is not only rainbow perspectives, but also tangible "pitfalls".

The advantages of international student exchange programs were described above, it remains only to discuss all the shortcomings of such a large-scale ventilation that is capable of changing the whole life in the future.

So, already by tradition, let's start with the main thing:

1. Another mentality and nostalgia in the homeland. Remembering your international experience, I can say that, going to Frankfurt (Germany) on the exchange, I could not think that in a week I will begin to raise my homeland.

There were enough emotions and new impressions for a while, and even with excellent knowledge of the language, not only the language, but also the national barrier was felt. Of course, the Germans are hospitable, but they, unfortunately, are not typical of the richness of the Russian soul.

They are detained in emotions, pedantic and punctual, and foreigners are generally perceived as aliens.

If you are going to America, it is even more difficult, because even a century can not understand "Yanki".

2. Duration of training. If you are a student and officially participate in the international exchange program, then the homeland should learn that learning abroad lasts from 8 to 10 months.

Only after passing the full course can be obtained by the official status of Alumni (graduate). If you have to surrender earlier, then the release and speech cannot be, besides, you can lose a large number of connections and prospects.

That is why it is important to count on your strength, and can you hold out for so long far from the homeland? Can it initially abandon these far-sighted plans?

3. Language barrier. In my own experience I know how well you did not know a foreign language, to understand people who are his carriers are very problematic.

Of course, over time, you can take a new and not completely familiar manner of communication, to delve into each word and actively use the dictionary (by an electronic translator), but all the same part of the national sayings will remain beyond the understanding.

Yes, and to independently express in a foreign language will be much more complicated, although I still can not understand this phenomenon. Is that students wake up?

4. Features of residence. Whatever developed and progressive is the country of stay, it is very difficult for a foreigner in it. ENOUCIs and wild lifestyle often lead to the deepest stress, and new things and items are at all causes a feeling of depression. I want to live according to the rules of my soul and your people, but there is no such possibility abroad and will not.

As you have already noticed, all the negative moments of the international exchange program are associated with the moral perception of the traveling student. If you do not take a cardinal change of the situation so close to your heart, then several months in Europe are flying like summer holidays - spectacular and enjoyable.

If the decision is made ...

So, the student still decided in the first year that in the future it will definitely take part in the International Exchange Program. What to do after such a solution to be at the right time to be in the right place? In fact, nothing complicated - morally prepare and more information to learn about all existing exchange programs.

To do this, immediately after receipt of the first year of the university, it is recommended to contact the dean with the question of which students' exchange programs are available, and how can you be directly involved in them.

Then it will not hurt to pull up their studies and seriously take up an in-depth study of a foreign language.

It is important here to understand that those who wish to such an overseas journey are abused, so the competition for one place will be simply ambitious, and the Commission will be strict and picky.

It is important not only to attend mandatory courses of a foreign language, but also to further go to language courses, individually with a tutor and just communicate with the carrier of this language (if there is such an opportunity).

Also does not prevent additionally talk to students who have previously participated in a similar international program and get an objective understanding that you expect in Europe.

In addition, you can approximately estimate the prospects that open before the student only thanks to the participation in the International Exchange Program.

Separately, it is worth noting that there is no place for holding and lobbying abroad and in foreign universities, so you will choose applicants for participation in the international exchange program will be exclusively from the best, editorialists of the course and excellent students. So the rest of school is also not recommended to run, otherwise the chances of traveling at times will be reduced.