How to avoid logical errors

Logical errors are what occurs from each of us. In this article, we will consider examples of logical errors, which, one way or another, are found in our daily life.

The basics of logic we considered separately. We strongly recommend familiarizing yourself with them and learn 4 of the main law of logic. Also pay attention to cognitive distortion, or common mistakes of thinking. Very interesting!

But now we will talk only about logical errors.

The substitution of the thesis is a logical error in the proof, which, having started to prove some thesis, gradually during the proof, transition to the proof of another position similar to the thesis, but having a completely different meaning.

Another popular logical error is the "anticipation of the foundation". It lies in the fact that as arguments are used unproved, as a rule, arbitrarily taken positions: refer to rumors, on the walking opinions, expressed by someone's assumptions or even on their own fiction, issuing them for arguments, allegedly justifying the thesis.

In reality, the benignness of such arguments is only anticipated, but is not installed with non-responsibility. Typically, such false arguments are accompanied by phrases: "As absolutely everyone knows ...", "Who will argue with what ...", "says it goes without saying that ...", "everyone knows that ..." in order to dispel possible doubts Simple listener.
